June 14, 2011, Tuesday: Excuse me, I am very detailed in my articles, I enjoy putting in all of the facts. So, if I get too tedious with my facts, just skip over the minor stuff and get to the good stuff. Today after work, I met up with Senior Lead Investigator Christina George at Barnes & Noble Bookstore 3561 N. Freeway Blvd, Natomas and we walked over to Panera Bread at 3571 N. Freeway Blvd, Natomas. While Christina George ordered the chicken soup, lemonade, I was getting the Swiss cheese and ham sandwich, along with an iced mocha. As Christina and I rehashed about our past paranormal adventures, we were there for another reason. Christina explains to me that she wishes she can go on this Area 51 excursion, but due to family events, she cannot make this road trip. She was concerned with our safety. Christina relates on how Bob Lazar exposed the world to the secrets of Area 51, by telling the public on how crashed retrieved UFOs were being back engineered. Christina feels it is necessary for us to collect soil samples. The reason being is if UFOs were being test flown over the base, there have been many case examples of UFOs depositing liquid metal (possibly Mercury) onto our terra firma. Christina is correct and my group of Ufologists does plan to take soil samples near and around Area 51 and test for Mercury deposits. Christina received reports that underground tunnels may lead from Area 51 to parts of Utah and Colorado. UFO theorists do believe that Area 51 may have moved to an underground location in either Utah or Colorado, due to the extreme publicity that Area 51 has received. I assured Christina that soil samples will be taken as we departed our ways.

There will be two theme songs for this article. Gravity by James Brown. As we all know, UFOs seem to defy the laws of Gravity and this song seems most fitting and can be heard here:
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7yqvgzduFWc

The next song is ET by Katy Perry and that song can be heard here:
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=18oYGsmUprM

Special Note: Nick Pope is watching this story. George Knapp tweeted that HPI is having an expedition at Area 51. Nellis AFB befriended me on Facebook. From the look of things, we will be the first paranormal group collecting soil samples in and around Area 51! We have access to two laboratories, one in Switzerland and one in New Mexico via Robert Winter of The Winter Group!

June 17, 2011 Friday: Now let's get to the investigation in hand! It's Friday night and we are leaving at midnight June 18, 2011. HPI Ufologists/UFO Hunters present are: Paul Dale Roberts, HPI Lead Ufologist; Tammy Straling, Judy Raderchak, Regina Tellez, Chantal Apodaca.

Special Note: Robert Winter, Ufologist of The Winter Group had a family emergency and was not able to attend this excursion. Any soil samples will be mailed out to Robert Winter. On our way to Area 51, we encountered wild Mustangs, 1 scorpion, open range cows and coyotes.

Special Note: On Hwy 6, we came across crisscrossing patterns of contrails. Could these be chemtrails?

As we head out in my vehicle the Rusty Anomaly, it's a long 11 hour drive. We left at midnight and arrived in Rachel, Nevada at 11am June 18, 2011 Saturday. Our first stop was the A' Le' Inn. I ordered the World Famous Alien Burger and a Coke for $5.50. I interviewed the 21 year old bartender woman named Samantha Travis. Here is what she told me:

1. She hears 20 sonic booms a day.
2. She witnessed a sonic boom knocking a man off his feet.
Special Note: We heard no sonic booms during our investigation.
3. They sometimes get what they call a super sonic boom, which is two boom boom sounds.
4. She actually saw the top secret classified Aurora. As it flew past her, she noticed it laid out twirling encircled contrail.
5. She makes claim she sees UFOs on a daily or nightly basis. She cannot explain what she is seeing in our atmosphere.
6. The strangest thing she has witnessed are the odd people that sometimes frequent A'le'Inn. One time there were 5 bikini women wearing tin foil caps.
7. She has talked with electricians and heavy equipment operators that work at Area 51 and they will not disclose any sensitive information to her.
8. Once a jet flew to her level of vision and then hovered. The pilot actually waved at her.
9. White trucks, black sedans, white vans, white heavy equipment vehicles go in and out of Area 51.

AREA 51 OUTSIDE PERIMETERS INVESTIGATION:
We went to the back gate of Area 51. It was 8 miles down the road from the main street on Rachel. The road was gravel, but as you approach Area 51, it is a paved street. When we hit the paved road, Tammy & Judy saw a white disc peek from the side of the mountain and flashed one signal, before disappearing. When it disappeared a black jeep was moving lightning speed in the area of disappearance, leaving a dust cloud trailing behind the fast moving jeep. I witnessed the jeep, but did not see the white disc.

We approached the gate and there were warning signs that indicated no photographs were allowed. There are several video surveillance cameras at the gate. There is an array of satellite dishes on the landscape. Judy with binoculars in hand saw a man in camouflage clothing on the hill. We took soil samples. The soil is somewhat odd. The soil has discoloration and many parts of the ground from where the soil was collected, has strange wires. We collected some of these odd wires for analysis.

The Ale' Le' Inn allowed us to camp out all night on their property. If you ever travel to Area 51, you will love the dips on the road. It's like a rollercoaster ride as your vehicle will go up and down these sloping hills that are part of the road. As we are camping out, the wind gusts were heavy for awhile, and then they subsided. We spotted unusual cloud patterns that are swirling disc shapes. The employees of Ale' L' Inn informed us that Unit 2 of their motel is haunted and welcomed us to investigate this Unit.

Chantal Apodaca ordered me coffee, fried pork, potato salad, toss salad, corn. It was absolutely scrumptious, very filling and a good reasonable price! The employees and owners are so hospitable. I felt like I was at home and knew these people all of my life. They are willing to give the shirt off their back. I love this place and remember the movie 'Paul' was filmed here, they actually filmed outside of the building and not inside.

June 18, 2011 Saturday: The employees of the Ale' le' Inn took us to 3 haunted locations while we camped out at the Ale' le' Inn. Tammy Straling was base camp and kept observing the night skies. Jay Keller in his Kodiak Ultimatic Quad took us to Unit 2 of the Ale' le' Inn. As you walk into Unit 2, you feel strong electrical energy on your arms and the back of your neck. Some of the investigators felt nauseated. After 8 attempts we finally got one EVP that said 'get out of here'. A woman with a broken heart died of natural causes in Unit 2. Jay allowed Chantal to drive his quad with Regina in tow. Later Jay took Tammy for a ride on his quad. After the rides on the quad, we headed down the road to a haunted abandoned home. As soon as I walked in I felt nauseated, we obtained some orb pictures, but the place was filled with dust and flying bats. The home looked like a home for hoarders. A couple died in this home of natural causes. No EVPs. Then finally we investigated an abandoned trailer where a man had died of alcohol poisoning, No EVPs were obtained here either.

After our 3 haunted location investigations, we went back to observe the night skies. Using binoculars, telescopes, night vision goggles we saw one black dark object hovering near a star by the Orion belt. Time: 0213 Hours. The black object finally faded out. Regina and Judy saw one blinking light move in a zig zag motion and blink out, it was seen on the opposite side of Area 51 near the mountain range. Time: 0329 Hours. Judy was not able to capture the moving blinking light on video camera or her regular camera.

CONCLUSION:
All in all, this was a great investigation. There were strange anomalies seen in the skies during the day and night, that we can't explain and many people that we talked to make claims of seeing strange objects in the night sky that they cannot explain. Are the strange objects observed extraterrestrial? Maybe yes, maybe not. But, what I do know is that the government is very protective of their secrets with the many video cameras and sound detectors located at their back entrance, tells me that there are many secrets at this undisclosed base.

HOOKER VALLEY TRACK IN NEW ZEALAND. IS THIS PLACE HAUNTED?

The Hooker Valley Track is not famously haunted, but it is closely associated with paranormal tales surrounding the historic Hooker Hut, which was historically located in the valley.

Haunted History of the Area

- The "Resident Alpine Ghost": The original Hooker Hut, built in 1910, was long rumored to be haunted, with mountain guides, pilots, and visitors reporting strange noises and paranormal activity. A mountain guide claimed that he felt ghostly fingers in his front pocket. The ghostly hand pulled out his car keys and tossed them to the floor.

- The Phantom Hiker: Stories often feature a ghostly figure, described by some as an old-fashioned hiker, wandering the area. The Phantom Hiker has many wrinkles on his face and will sometimes appear in a mirror.

HAUNTED TRINIDAD
Trinidad is considered highly haunted by locals, deeply rooted in the island's folklore of malevolent spirits known as "Jumbies" or "Duppies". The island is home to infamous ghost stories and allegedly haunted sites, the most famous being Chacachacare Island. The island's lore and reputation stem from several specific locations and legends, let's take a look at some of these locations and legends.

Chacachacare Island:
This abandoned leper colony and former nunnery is the Caribbean's most infamous haunted spot. Locals and visitors frequently recount legends of a ghost nun wandering the abandoned ruins with a lantern, crying after supposedly committing suicide over a forbidden love. Many locals and some tourists have heard wheezing sounds and some disembodied coughing. A tourist named Lonnie San Marcos claims he heard a man yelling "I can't see!" Some locals claim they have seen apparitions of leper patients walking around the island.

Lopinot Complex:
Known as a historically active spot for paranormal activity, visitors and investigators have reported hearing disembodied voices and footsteps echoing through this historic estate. My ex-brother-in-law Michael McDaniels stopped by this complex and claims he felt a feeling of dread. Michael also claims he heard weeping. Michael lived in St. Thomas for 5 years and worked on an archaeology maritime assignment at Trinidad and Tobago. According to Michael, Trinidad is very haunted, there seems to be a ghost story around every corner and with Tobago, not so much. Michael says that the Lopinot Complex is a restored colonial estate in Trinidad and Tobago originally established in 1806 as La Reconnaissance, a cocoa plantation. Founded by the French Count Charles de Lopinot, the property was worked by enslaved Africans and later used to harbor and discipline enslaved workers. Michael says he heard the sounds of a bullwhip and a man screaming on his last day on the island. The quick scream gave Michael goosebumps.

The Solomon Hochoy Highway:
Local urban legends warn of an apparition of a woman in white on the highway, supposedly trying to hitchhike or warning drivers before vanishing. Joseph Maharaj who once lived in Trinidad claims that he slowed down for the Highway Woman in White and she looked like she was panicking. Then before Joseph knew it, she materialized through his back car door and was sitting in his back seat. She was pointing her finger at something and her mouth was open, and then she vanished. Joseph will never forget his drive down this highway, it was the most scariest thing that ever happened to him.

"Jumbie" Folklore:

Beyond physical locations, Trinidadian culture heavily features Jumbies. These are spirits of the deceased who did not rest in peace and are believed to actively interfere with the living, haunting specific trees (like the Silk Cotton tree), crossroad junctions, and homes. Jonathan Baptiste who was visiting family in Trinidad encountered a Silk Cotton Tree that had living branch limbs. The branch leaves extended out, as if they were trying to snatch Jonathan up. Jonathan ran out of the area as fast as he could. Jonathan feels if he got close to the tree, he would have wind up as a missing person.

HAUNTED TOBAGO

Tobago and the broader twin-island nation are rich with ghost stories and folklore, primarily rooted in the nation's history of slavery, colonial plantations, and rich Afro-Caribbean mythology. While specific ghost sightings are subjective, supernatural lore—known locally as "jumbie" stories—is very much a part of Tobagonian culture.

Soucouyants:
A prominent myth involves the Soucouyant, a folkloric figure who sheds her skin by night and transforms into a ball of fire to suck the blood of unsuspecting victims while they sleep. Lance DeVertevil, who went to Tobago to visit his cousins claims his great grandmother was visited by a Soucouyant. A ball of fire similar to ball lightning went through her window and flew around her bedroom. Lance's great grandmother screamed and her husband pulled out his rifle and shot a hole in his ceiling. When he did that, the ball lightning disappeared. The family when hearing this story, believe it was a Soucouyant. Special Note: Some locals of Tobago say that some people of the island practice Voodoo and there have been times zombies have walked around the island. Frances P. claims that he was at an outing and one of the participants, a woman was given a roofie. She was also given other substances and for about 2 weeks, she was in a zombified state of mind, you could tell her to do anything, and she would have done it. Frances P. would not provide her name, in fear of some kind of retaliation.

A married couple in Tobago are visited by a Soucouyant. A Soucouyant looks like a ball of energy (possible ball lightning). The Soucouyant terrifies the couple and the husband panics and shoots his rifle towards the ceiling.

IS THE PANTANAL IN BRAZIL HAUNTED?

While the Pantanal in Brazil isn't notoriously "haunted" in the classic paranormal sense, it is heavily steeped in local folklore and features genuinely eerie, abandoned locations that are widely considered "ghost towns".

Key Eerie & Haunted Spots

- Vila dos Descalvados: This is the most infamous "haunted" location in the region. It's a 19th-century ghost town situated deep on the banks of the Paraguay River. Originally built as a massive cattle and meat-packing operation by Belgian investors in the 1890s, it eventually fell into disuse. Today, only a handful of caretakers remain. Locals and visitors describe the remaining buildings—including a decaying main house filled with 1800s English staircases and bat colonies—as deeply unsettling and "bad news".

- The "Haunted" Potoo Bird: The atmosphere at night can easily spark supernatural legends. The Pantanal is home to the urutau (the potoo bird), a nocturnal bird whose echoing, weeping wail sounds incredibly similar to a crying human or a haunted house.
